The Art of a
Smudge

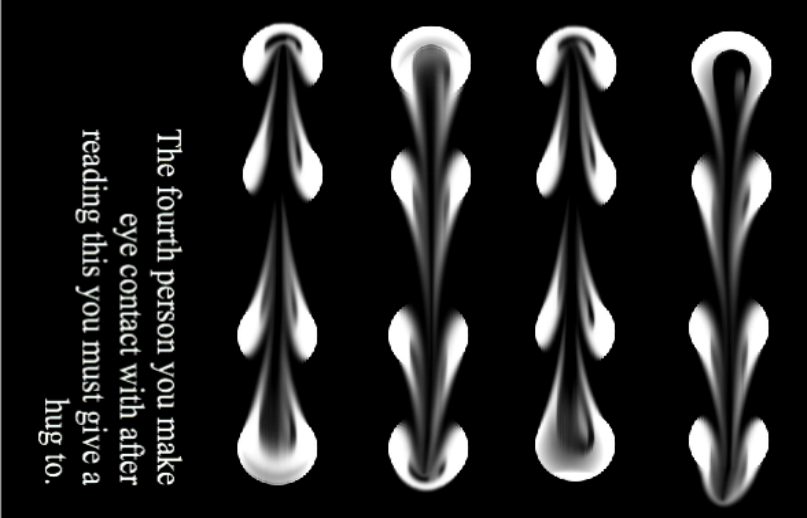

Game Edition

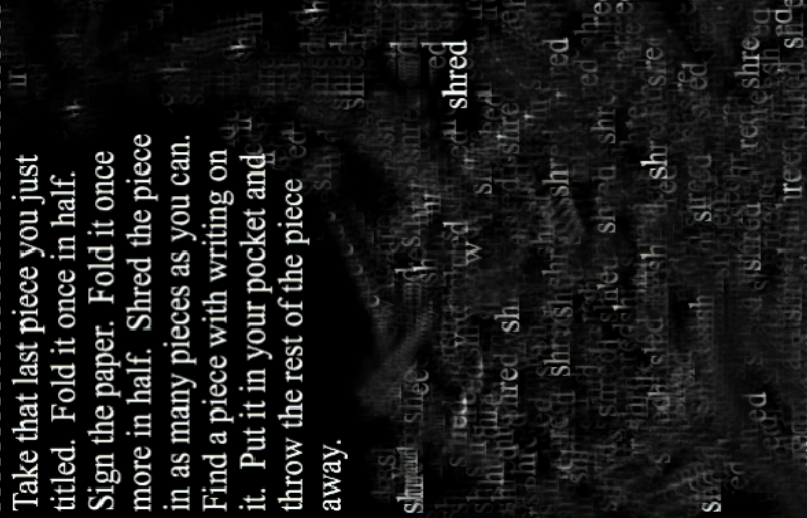

Take a walk outside. Stare into the sun with eyes closed. Feel the warmth of the rays on your face. Stay there for as long as you need. Take this time to step away from life. Prepare for the rest of this book. The rest of the day. Life.

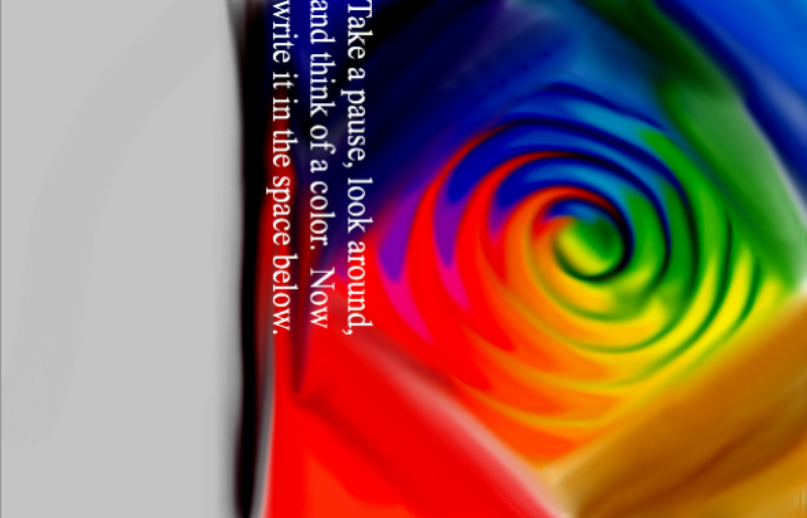

We are at the end of our journey together. We have experienced some games. And we have witnessed some smudging. Take care, and smudge away.

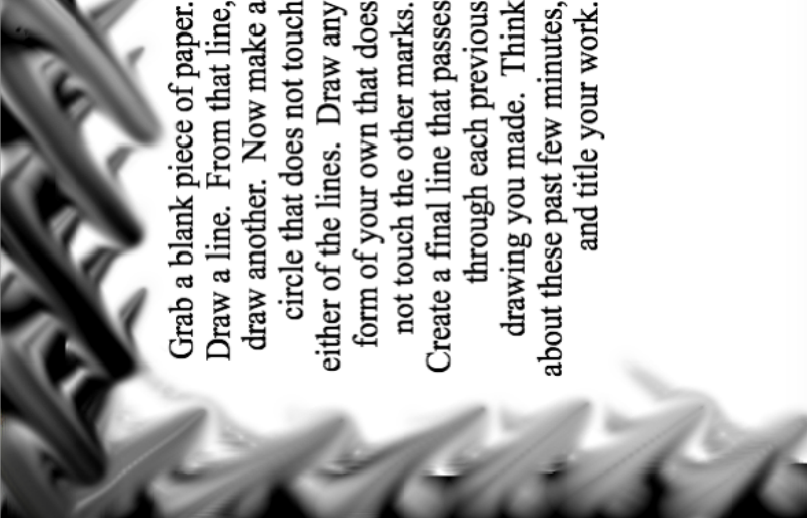

The fourth person you make eye contact with after reading this you must give a hug to.

Take that last piece you just titled. Fold it once in half. Sign the paper. Fold it once more in half. Shred the piece in as many pieces as you can. Find a piece with writing on it. Put it in your pocket and throw the rest of the piece away.

Take a pause, look around, and think of a color. Now write it in the space below.

Grab a blank piece of paper. Draw a line. From that line, draw another. Now make a circle that does not touch either of the lines. Draw any form of your own that does not touch the other marks. Create a final line that passes through each previous drawing you made. Think about these past few minutes, and title your work.
